The Origin of English Cashmeres.

DURING the decade extending between the years 1870 to 1880, which was a period coincident with the revival of good taste in English Dress and Dress Fabrics, the soft hand-made Cashmeres of India were the only woollen materials procurable at all complying with the awakened artistic demand.

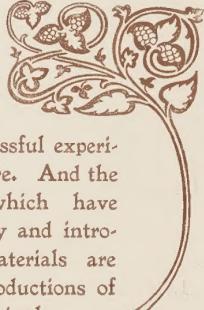

Messrs. Liberty, after many attempts, failures, and disappointments, at last proved it possible to reproduce on British looms woollen materials which possessed all the satisfactory characteristics of the veritable East Indian Cashmeres, and to secure the very great additional advantage of the materials being more durable and far less costly.

Messrs. Liberty were not only the first to experiment and initiate the improvements, they are the founders of this now important and widely spread industry, and to their initiative alone is due the so greatly beneficial change which has revolutionized and extended the British Trade in Woollen Dress Fabrics.

The first of the new woollen materials in order of issue was introduced with the suggestively Indian name of Umrítzur Cashmere with a view to secure in public apprehension a continuity of idea, and as the innovation became more generally understood the material was renamed "Liberty" Cashmere.

All subsequent British machine-made and soft-finished Cashmeres are developments or variations of the first successful experiment the "Umrítzur" Cashmere. And the many beautiful colourings which have been revived by Messrs. Liberty and introduced in these woollen materials are almost without exception reproductions of judiciously selected Eastern originals.

“Liberty”-Cashmere.

“LIBERTY” CASHMERE is monotone in colour, was first produced, and made for, Messrs. LIBERTY & Co. now nearly twenty years ago; and its introduction created a veritable revolution in regard to improvements in the finishing and colouring of every variety of manufacture in connection with Woollen-Dress-Fabrics.

“LIBERTY” CASHMERE is now known and held in foremost repute throughout the whole civilized World—for its combined advantages of (1) Softness and delicacy of texture: (2) Durability, and: (3) Exquisite Colouring.

“LIBERTY” CASHMERE is woven in England, and from the finest East Indian Wools.

THE COLOURS include a wide range of rich and subdued Autumnal Tints in addition to Greys and Drabs.

AS A BEAUTIFUL AND DELIGHTFUL DRESS AND CLOAK material, “Liberty” Cashmere is unrivalled, and is perennially Fashionable.

Melrose-Cloth.

THE NEW MELROSE CLOTH is a "self" coloured, exceedingly Inexpensive, Artistic, and Well-made Pure Wool Cloth.

THE DISTINGUISHING FEATURE of the Melrose Cloth is an effect termed a "Sack-Cloth Weave," in allusion to a resemblance to the description of cloths generally associated with Monastic Garb.

MELROSE CLOTH has better wearing qualities than Canvas and somewhat kindred Cloths at an equally low price; and it is well adapted for CHILDREN'S SCHOOL-DRESSES, in addition to its marked suitability for ADULT MORNING-DRESS.

MELROSE CLOTH is dyed in a full range of warm and soft colours, including artistic shades and useful tones.

Price,—2/6 per yard, 46 inches wide.

“Liberty” Khush-Cashmere.

“LIBERTY” KHUSH-CASHMERE is largely composed of the far-famed Cashmere Goat-hair, and therefore is exceedingly light in relation to the thickness and peculiar warmth of the cloth.

THE ENTIRE FABRIC is crossed by woven, and faintly indicated, diagonal lines, whilst the surface is slightly bouclé and hairy.

THE COLOURS follow a range of rich and subdued Autumnal tints, in addition to Greys and Drabs.

“LIBERTY” KHUSH-CASHMERE is a material exceptionally suitable for WINTER COSTUMES (and CHILDREN'S MANTLES).

Price,—4/6 per yard, 44 inches wide.

“LIBERTY” DRESS FABRICS.

“Liberty” Velveteen.

This beautiful English manufactured fabric rivals in sheen and delicacy of touch the famous Velvets of Italy and France, has gained a world wide reputation by reason of (1) its good wearing qualities, (2) perfect finish, and (3) graceful draping.

The thickness of the fast-pile of this unique fabric imparts a fascinating and delightful peach-like bloom to its surface, and the exquisite fineness of texture ensures an almost absolute perfection of suppleness.

The ever-increasing demand for the material has suggested the addition of many new and dainty shades to the previous extensive range of rich and rare colourings (the names of which are as follows):

COLOURS.
